Everything You Need To Know About Guardianship

Guardianship is a legal intervention that often includes crisis stabilization, advocacy, care supervision and protective financial services. It is governed by Florida Law, F.S. §744 and based on the public policy “Parens Patriae,” allowing the state to intervene against an abusive or negligent individual, and to protect any vulnerable individual, after being declared legally incapacitated.

If an individual lacks decision-making capacity, has no advance directives, and is non-compliant with the necessary assistance to provide for their well-being, then guardianship may be the only alternative to keep him or her safe. Because guardianship removes many of a person’s rights, it should only be considered after other methods of protecting the most vulnerable of individuals fails.

Florida has several forms of guardianship, allowing for a very personalized intervention based on the incapacitated person’s needs. Any competent adult may designate another individual as their Pre-Need Guardian in the event a guardianship is ever needed in the future. Someone who is already another individual’s guardian can designate another person as a Standby Guardian in advance if the current guardian is no longer able to serve. Once a guardian is appointed, the incapacitated person is called the ward. During the court proceeding to establish a guardianship, s/he is referred to as the Alleged Incapacitated Person (AIP).

Florida has defined six “personal” rights that can be removed, but not delegated to the guardian, from the ward: the right to vote, drive, work, travel and marry*. Another seven rights are itemized in our law that can be removed from the ward and then delegated to the guardian: the right to contract*¹, sue, apply for government benefits, manage property, decide where to live, what medical treatment and his/her social environment.

An involuntary guardianship is appropriate when an individual “lacks capacity,” which is defined in Florida law as “the ability to manage at least some of the property or to meet at least some of the essential health and safety requirements.” When this is the case, an assessment of the person’s capacity is made by an examining committee and a Hearing to Determine Incapacity is held to decide what rights (if any) should be removed and to determine the scope of the guardianship. When the court determines the individual is able to retain some but not all rights,

 Florida Law recognizes that marriage is a type of contract. Therefore, if the right to contract has been removed, but the right to marry has been retained, then any proposed marriage must be approved by the court prior to the actual marriage.*

a Limited Guardian is appointed. When the court determines the individual is unable to retain any rights, a Plenary Guardian is appointed.

However, any competent individual can request the circuit court to appoint a Voluntary Guardian. This is a guardianship over the individual’s property only with no healthcare authority. Prior to the appointment of the guardian, a physician must state the person/ward is competent to make this decision.

It takes approximately sixty days to establish a guardianship in Florida. An attorney will draft several legal documents, file them with the court and a different attorney is appointed to represent the AIP during the incapacity proceeding.

Based on the examining committee’s reports and sworn testimony given at the capacity hearing, a hearing officer will decide if there is a less restrictive alternative to a guardianship. Should the AIP require a guardian, then a finding as to what rights will be removed will be made as well.

Once a guardian is appointed, s/he has many ongoing responsibilities, but these will differ based on what rights the ward retains. For the purpose of this article, we will assume all 13 rights have been removed from the ward. The guardian must file two initial reports with the court within

You Will Be Missed.

NOTES FROM THE MEN'S DROP-IN

Great news! The snowbirds are returning! Fred Vega and Ron Seidle showed up along with Dr. Marty Horowitz and all brought tales of their summer adventures. They also said they were happy to be back and how much they missed us (I thought I saw Fred with his fingers crossed).

As usual, what with everything that's happening in the world, we engaged in lively discussion. Our members are always up-to-date on current events and together we attempt to solve the world's problems within our allotted two-hour time frame. (Seriously, I am always amazed at the group's collective knowledge base.)

Of course, we all enjoy each other's company and laughter permeates every meeting along with a hefty dose of good-natured ribbing. Respect is always the order of the day...our moderator, Dr. Norm Peters, will accept nothing less.

SAGE CO-ED DISCUSSION GROUP

The new SAGE Co-Ed Drop-In Discussion group meeting (cosponsored with The Pride Center) has now met a couple of times and we would welcome others to join us. Women and men meeting together to enjoy the responses of one another to a variety of questions asked by the facilitator reveals interesting answers and insights from participants. Because the questions are not revealed prior to being asked means participants respond quickly--if not spontaneously. (Don't worry, you can always "pass" if you wish to do so.) After all participants have responded, time is provided for follow-up and/or other related observations. Often it is this exchange of thought that provides a shared "collective wisdom" to life's experiences. It can be most insightful to hear of the backgrounds and Lately, we have been enjoying the company of several new members. They, of course, receive a warm welcome and orientation about SAGE and our programs. Invariably they become SAGE members...which speaks volumes about the warmth and friendliness of the Drop-In guys and the great reputation SAGE enjoys in the senior LGBT community.

Laughter and good conversation with a fine group of gentlemen always makes for a successful afternoon. Stop by any Wednesday from 1-3PM at the Pride Center and just follow the friendly vibes and the sounds of laughter to our second floor meeting room.

opinions from others who appreciate social interaction in a forum of this kind.

SAGE SOCIAL-LITES

Ron Catena

October found a large number of SAGE members sipping the best margaritas and dining on zesty Mexican food at LaBamba. All I can say is thank goodness cocktail hour lasted no longer than an hour lest the restaurant run out of margarita mix. What with the food, the atmosphere, the margaritas, and the friendly attentive staff SAGE will return to LaBamba in the future!

Our second SAGE meet-up involved miniature golf, beer and sandwiches at Boomers of Boca. While there were no Ben Hogans or Babe Didriksons in the crowd and quite a few putts went awry, everyone agreed it was enormous fun. (As for those of you who sat in the clubhouse drinking beer and snickering at us duffers, remember...those who can golf and those who can't snicker.)

November 11th is Veterans Day. On Sunday, the 10th of November SAGE will honor those of our members who served in our armed forces at Zuckerellos. Cocktails begin at 6PM and dinner will be served at 7PM sharp! Join us in honoring the veterans to whom we all owe so much. Remember...as the Marines say: If you're not 15 minutes early, you're late!

On December 1st the annual "What Cruise" will depart from Port Everglades on a seven-day tour of San Juan, Half Moon Cay, and Turks & Caicos. Cruisers return refreshed and ready to greet the new year on December 8th.

The SAGE Annual Holiday Party will take place December 15th at the lovely Westin Hotel where we will be entertained by the dynamic duo of Glenn & Sissy. In the spirit of the holiday season SAGE has chosen to waive the non-SAGE member surcharge. So bring your friends, family, and acquaintances you might like to introduce to our fabulous group of LGBT seniors!

Speaking of seniors...it's almost time once again for the SAGE Annual Milestones Birthday Celebration at the Pride Center on January 26th! If you celebrated a milestone birthday this year (75, 80, 85, 90+) SAGE would like to honor you with a beautiful birthday celebration. Of course, the birthday guys and gals will enjoy the sumptuous Primavera buffet at no charge! Don't forget, there will be BIRTHDAY CAKE...lots and lots of birthday cake!!! The festivities begin at 1PM and will last until 5PM.

Well, boys and girls it seems we have a lot of SAGE activities lined up for your pleasure. Don't forget to mark your calendars (which should already be filled with SAGE events). The popularity of our SAGE activities grows every year and we, the organization, owe much of that growth to you, our membership!

This is a SAGE sponsored event.

sixty days of his/her appointment, a Plan [of Care] and a Verified Inventory [of the Assets]. The Plan is a listing of services the guardian plans to obtain for the ward. The Verified Inventory is a listing of all the ward's assets and is verified with back-up documentation such as bank statements and property appraisals.

The guardian also files annual reports. The Annual Plan includes a written evaluation from the ward's physician and whether the ward can have any rights restored. The Annual Accounting itemizes all receipts and disbursements along with supporting documentation. But these reports are only the beginning. A guardian of person regularly visits the ward, assessing the need for any change in the person's residence, medical and personal care and evaluates the need for social, recreational or rehabilitative services necessary to increase the ward's ability for self-determination. The guardian of property determines the best investments for the ward's assets and regularly checks any real property, as well as safeguards other personal belongings.

Guardianships end for several different reasons: a minor turns 18, the ward gets better or s/he dies.) When the guardianship ends, the guardian files a final report and turns over any remaining assets to the appropriate party.

Guardianship is very costly. There are court and legal fees throughout the administration of the guardianship. The guardian is also allowed to charge fees and the ward pays all these costs. If s/he has no assets, the attorney and guardian go unpaid. Unfortunately, funding for Public Guardianship is extremely limited, while the need for guardianship services continues to escalate throughout Florida. A 2004 study of Public Guardianship by the Florida Department of Elder Affairs indicates a conservative estimate of individuals in need of guardianship in Florida ranges between 5,000 and 10,000 persons per year. Many vulnerable individuals are never adjudicated incapacitated because they have no assets. Contrary to a common fallacy, the guardian does not keep the assets of the guardianship when it ends!

Since guardianship is an extremely intrusive and costly procedure, any alternative used to avoid the process should always be contemplated. Advance Directives such as a Durable Power of Attorney combined with a Designation of Healthcare Surrogate will often avoid the need for guardianship.

SEE YOU AT THE MOVIES

John Gearrity and Carl M. Galli

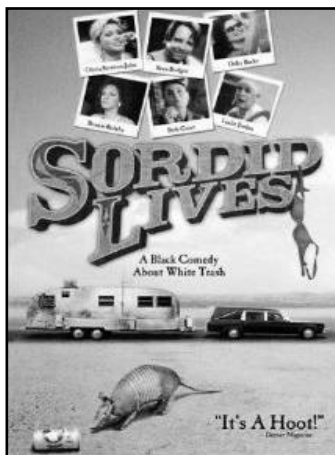

The SAGE movie for November will be shown on November 18 at 4:15 pm in Room 204 at The Pride Center and is in response to numerous requests to see Sordid Lives.

Sordid Lives is a laugh the size of Texas when Olivia Newton-John, Beau Bridges, Bonnie Bedelia, Delta Burke and, of course, Leslie Jordan in this twisted trash tale that puts the “fun” in dysfunctional.

The hilariously sordid details about a southern family that surfaces with a vengeance when relatives converge for the funeral of “Grandma Peggy”, who died after tripping over her lover’s wooden legs in a motel room!

Toss in a couple of feuding big-haired daughters, a jumpy aunt who has just stopped smoking and a crazy, cross-dressing “Brother-Boy” (Leslie Jordan) -- and you have an outrageous “train wreck” you can’t help but watch and laugh at.

As usual, we will be going to dinner following the movie. We’ll announce the choice and ask for a show of hands of people who would like to go to dinner.

Please help us by returning your chair to the chairs already stacked on the side walls of our theater.

Thank you.

See you at the movie.

OCCASIONAL THOUGHTS...OLD AGE IS NOT FOR WIMPS

Carol Youngblood

The first thing you need to know about growing old is that you will live a lot longer than you think. I was born in 1928, and I always hoped that I would make it to 2000. Well, I did, and then some.

I'm now 85, and unless something unexpected happens, I'm going to be around for some time. Where I live most of the people are in their 80's or 90's, although there are some younger and three who are 100. The geriatric specialists have thrown away the book because we're writing a new one.

What this means is that you have to have a plan for your old age. First, you're going to need to know where you are going to get the money to live all those years. Lots of people nowadays say that they will continue to work. That's probably fine at 67. Will it still be fine at 77 or 87? And will they still want you? If you plan on living on Social Security, be sure you have no debt because it doesn't pay very much. (I have read that it pays more if you wait till 70, an option not available when I retired.) (There is also the possibility that it won't be around for those of you in your 50's.)

Second, you'll have to decide where you're going to live, at home or in a group home. (I live in a retirement home.) Again, think about what you may like at 67 and then at 77 or 87. Remember that as you get older you pay for people to do things you used to do, such as mowing the lawn and cleaning the house. Also, you will have to stop driving eventually. If you need a home health aide, you will -have to pay because Medicare doesn't. (If you're concerned about discrimination, this is where you are apt to find it. Dishonest aides zero in on whatever they can to take your money.)

and emphysema), arthritis, dementia. Many have heart and kidney problems. Walkers and scooters are common where I live. (I have COPD and arthritis, and I use a walker.) Senses also diminish. Although Medicare pays for glasses, it does not pay for hearing aids or dentures. It also does not pay for help for dementia patients. (By the way, I am describing people living in independent living. Assisted living is something different—and much more expensive.)

I have no special knowledge about legal things people may need beyond a will, a power of attorney, a living will, and a healthcare surrogate. However, I have learned that one of the most helpful things you can buy is long-term health insurance. In the time I have lived at the Horizon Club I have seen it pay for thousands upon thousands of dollars of care. This kind of insurance is expensive, but if you're in your 50's or 60's, definitely look into it.

I hope that I have scared you into paying attention. It's important. Many of the people with whom I live get financial help from their children. Most gay people don't have that luxury. I don't have children, and I don't have enough money to pay for assisted living. I didn't make a good enough plan, so I keep my fingers crossed.

There is a happier side to this depressing story. I have not talked to many men about this subject, but I have talked to lots of women. To a person, they say that they are happier living alone. Not that we didn't like our husbands or partners, life is just easier alone. Many of us, including me, are very happy. And you can look forward to that, along with a lot of aches and pains.
